Alesis Debuts The iMultiMix 9R Rackmounted Pro Mixer With Dock for iPod

January 18, 2008

Alesis reveals the iMultiMix 9R Mixer with Universal Dock for iPod at the 2008 Winter NAMM show in Anaheim, CA.

This sturdy, compact, all-in-one rack-mounted mixer integrated iPod player features 5 mic/line inputs with inserts to allow for easy external processing of incoming channels, or iPod audio playback.

The iMultiMix 9R also features 2-band per channel EQ, Mic/Line inputs and iPod playback in a single, intuitive package. The iMultiMix 9R can playback music from the iPod and mix your live performances instantly with iPod (Classic and 5th generation) or iPod nano (2nd and 3rd generation). This makes the iMultiMix 9R perfect for using the iPod as a backing track for solo or band performances, while mixing sound sources all in one compact, convenient place.

The easy-to-read 60mm faders ensure clear indication of audio level every time. For ultra-clean mixing of any performance, including home studios, musicians, small or large venues, and houses of worship, the iMultiMix 9R is an ideal solution.

The iMultiMix 9R is loaded with features such as:

- Integrated Universal Dock for iPod
- Five high-gain mic/line preamps (XLR and 1/4" balanced)
- 48V phantom power
- Aux sends and returns
- Two band per channel EQ with High/Low shelving

The iMultiMix 9R will be available Q1-2008 from musical instrument retailers with a suggested retail price of $399.
